General comments:
Sean has been extremely conscientious about his TA tasks. He kept daily records of class participation, prepared materials for class distribution, completed grading assignments in a timely manner, and proctored examinations. He posted materials and announcements to our course Blackboard and maintained our grade book in Excel. His feedback on student written work provided both general guidance and specific suggestions to improve both form and content. He attended all class sessions and weekly staff planning meetings throughout the semester. It has been a pleasure to work with him and I would gladly do so again. Very helpful.

Strengths:
Sean researched, prepared, and presented a cogent and engaging lecture on "Human Rights Advocacy and Global Civil Society," which included a comparative analysis of two service and advocacy organizations, ICRC and Amnesty International. He also presented a lecture I had prepared on the World Trade Organization while I was out-of-town to attend the Northeast Political Science Association conference.

Sean was very helpful to the students in general and very patient with one student in particular who was very demanding on his time. Very responsible.

Areas for student to improve:
None. Keep up the good work!
